Community Groups Win Grants

Three community groups have been awarded grants from the D.C. Children and Youth Investment Trust, a public-private partnership.

Mayor Adrian M. Fenty (D) said the Latin American Youth Center and the Peaceholics would each get a $239,000 grant for conflict mediation, crisis intervention, counseling, health care, education and job placement. Fenty said ROPE Inc. would also receive a grant, but the amount was not specified.

Millicent Williams, head of the investment trust, said the funds are part of the city's At-Risk Youth Assistance Program.
