CityGate, Inc.

Our 2010 summer science camp program will address a healthy lifestyle through nutrition and exercise, stop summer learning lost and improve academic performance through engaging academic activities, and develop broader tools (problem solving and critical thinking skills, an expanded knowledge base, and positive community connections) for children to become successful and productive adults. The program will build around three core apparatus: science, health, and academic enrichment through active physical activity, interactive and participatory learning activities. Students will participate in two field trips weekly in order to develop learning through active hands-on experiences with the resources of the local community. Most importantly, students will discover that learning is fun!

National Organization of Concerned Black Men

CBM Summer Camp is Concerned Black Men's summer enrichment program which offers children and youth an extended "summer camp" experience that includes the arts, science and sports for approximately eight weeks after the academic school year. Goals

1. To offer an enriching summer learning program to children from disadvantaged communities;
2. To engage children and youth in activities that will keep them out of trouble during the summer months;
3. To provide a mentoring experience to children, and an opportunity to mentor for older youths, in a relaxed and nurturing environment;
4. To offer a non-traditional learning experience during the summer that includes storytelling, interactive science experiments, dance and other activities that might not be offered in a regular classroom setting.

Recreation Wish List Committee

Helping young people succeed in school—while keeping fit, having fun, and developing new interests—is at the heart of our year-round Academic Scholars Program. Both our after-school and summer programs focus on helping students improve their reading and math skills. Our summer program is based upon proven math and reading curricula designed to help students improve at least one level. During the school year, tutors provide math and reading support tailored to each student's individual needs. Throughout the year, students also take part in a variety of educational and enrichment programs to boost academics,

Time Dollar Youth Court, Inc. (TDYC)

The Summer Focus Group will meet five times a week for four hours, with the fifth session being Saturdays at the TDYC Youth Court. The program will encompass five areas: group discussion, group activities, physical fitness, artistic expression, and field trips. During the week, youth will meet for group discussions to “focus” on self-awareness and advocacy, personal development, and manhood. They will also work with a certified personal trainer on physical activities to release stress, as well as acknowledge the importance of physical health on the body. They will also create collages, drawings, song/rap lyrics, etc., to allow the youth to artistically express their lives and the communities they live in.
